Read the passage below and then answer questions 6 to 9.

Human beings have always kept animals for different purposes. Animals can be kept as pets. A pet is an animal kept for pleasure. We keep pets because we love their company. We play with them. They are just like our friends, so we keep them happy and comfortable. Indeed, the dog, which is a common pet, has been said to be man's best friend.

Animals can also be kept to help human beings do certain tasks. This is because they have special abilities which human beings do not have. For example, donkeys have strength to carry heavy luggage. They can therefore help us in transportation.

Some animals are kept as source of food. Animal products such as milk and eggs are a rich source of nutrients. It is important to realise that whether we keep animals as pets, to help in work, or for food, they deserve kind treatment.

6. Why do we keep pets?
- To help us carry heavy things.
 - To make us happy.
 - To provide food.
 - To protect the environment.
7. Which one of the following is true about donkeys and dogs?
- They are man's best friend.
 - They are better than us.
 - They can do things that we cannot do.
 - They are always comfortable and healthy.
8. The word 'special' as used in the passage means the same as _____
- strange.
 - unusual.
 - new.
 - unknown.
9. What is likely to happen if we do not treat animals kindly?
- They will not live with us.
 - They may not give us enough food.
 - We may not get enough benefits from them.
 - We may not be happy and comfortable.

Read the story below and then answer questions 10 to 12.

Hassan likes running errands for his parents. The other day, he was sent to the shop to buy some items. His father had written the prices of the items on a list. The total cost was four hundred and twenty five shillings. His father had given him five hundred shillings. Hassan was expecting a balance of seventy five shillings.

The shopkeeper was very busy on that day. She was serving many customers. When Hassan got the balance, he stepped out of the shop to count the money. He could not believe it. The shopkeeper had given him five hundred and seventy five shillings! Hassan thought this was his lucky day.

He sat down under a tree to plan how he would spend his new found cash. He started counting all the things he wanted to buy. This time he would go to a different shop.

On his way to the shop, Hassan remembered what his father had once told him, "Never take what does not belong to you". He realised the five hundred shillings belonged to the shopkeeper. He walked back to the shop to return the money. The shopkeeper was surprised to see him back so soon. When Hassan handed her the money, she was very grateful and said, "You are an angel. I'm proud of you, young man".

Hassan walked home shoulder high. He knew his father would be very pleased with him.

10. Why did Hassan's father write the list of items?
- He did not want Hassan to forget any item.
 - He did not want Hassan to delay in the shop.
 - He wanted Hassan to get the right balance from the shopkeeper.
 - He wanted Hassan to do the totals of the cost of the items.
11. The shopkeeper was surprised to see Hassan back because _____
- Hassan returned the money.
 - the shopkeeper was very busy that day.
 - Hassan had just left the shop.
 - the shopkeeper had given him the balance.
12. This story teaches us that _____
- honesty is the best policy.
 - hurry hurry has no blessing.
 - once bitten twice shy.
 - a friend in need is a friend indeed.

Read the story below and then answer questions 13 to 15.

Many afternoons, Hyena and Hare spent hours in a field eating the farmer's groundnuts. One day, Hare heard that the farmer was complaining that his groundnuts were being stolen. Hare went to him and said, "I will catch the thief for you."

One afternoon, Hare told Hyena that groundnuts are sweeter when you eat them with your legs buried in the ground. Hyena buried his four legs in the ground. He looked at the Hare and asked him, "Hare, why have you not buried your four legs?" Hare replied, "My legs are very short." Hyena was happy with Hare's answer, and he continued eating groundnuts. Hare watched carefully and when he saw the farmer coming, he quickly ran away. Hyena too saw the farmer, and tried to escape, but his legs were stuck in the ground. The farmer caught him and gave him a thorough beating.

13. Which one of the following is true according to the story?
- Hare stole the groundnuts just like Hyena.
